Dear Readers,

Warm welcome to Volume XIII, Issue II of the "Amity Journal of Management (AJM)."

This edition of AJM continues its commitment to featuring high-quality and thought-provoking research in the dynamic field of Business and Management. We are delighted to present a collection of carefully selected articles that provide insights into pressing topics relevant to academics, policymakers, and industry practitioners.

The first paper, "Time Management and Information Overload Management Among Private Secondary School Students in Kwara State, Nigeria," investigates the strong link between poor time management and information overload among students. The findings highlight the need for effective strategies to combat procrastination and enhance productivity.

The second article, "An Investigation into Electronic Banking Services in Nigeria: Measuring Bank Employees' Perceptions So Far," explores the revolutionary impact of electronic banking on Nigeria's financial sector. The study emphasizes both the benefits and challenges associated with this technological shift, offering recommendations for improving service delivery.

The third paper, "Dynamic Adjustment Between Energy Demand and Productivity Growth with Exchange Rate Devaluation as a Moderating Variable," examines the interplay between energy consumption, productivity, and exchange rate fluctuations in oil-importing countries. The study provides critical insights for managing energy demand and macroeconomic stability.

The fourth article, "Impact of Corporate Sustainability Reporting on Firm Value in Nigeria," analyzes the positive influence of sustainability reporting on firm valuation, advocating for its integration into corporate strategies for long-term growth and performance enhancement.

Lastly, "Stakeholder Engagement and Sustainable Tourism in Developing Countries: Insights from Old Oyo National Park," investigates the role of public-private partnerships and community engagement in fostering sustainable tourism. The findings emphasize the importance of inclusive governance and infrastructure development for national economic growth.

We extend our heartfelt gratitude to the authors for their contributions and to our readers for their continued support. We invite you to delve into the rich content of this issue, which continues to foster meaningful dialogue and innovation in the realm of Business and Management.
