Pedestrian Priority on Campus

Prioritizing pedestrian access on campus enhances safety, encourages healthy lifestyles, and reduces the environmental impact of vehicular traffic. We achieved this through the creation of pedestrian-only zones, well-lit walkways, and safe crossing points. Limiting vehicle access in key areas, combined with the development of shaded, accessible pathways, encourages walking as a primary mode of transport on campus. Designed the campus layout to reduce the need for driving can make the environment more conducive to pedestrian traffic. University also invested in campaigns to promote walking as a sustainable commuting option, further reducing reliance on motor vehicles and contributing to a greener campus.
