WRITE UP OF THE EVENT

Amisustain club of Amity University Mumbai collaborated with Project Mumbai to organise a beach cleaning event at Mahim Beach near Hinduja Hospital, which started around 7:30 in the morning. Volunteers gathered at a table set up by Project Mumbai, arriving at the location either by public transport or car. The volunteers received a briefing about the importance of beach cleaning and were educated about the distinction between biodegradable and non-biodegradable materials.

Project Mumbai provided the volunteers with necessary equipment such as gloves, bags, and masks. After the cleaning activity, everyone washed their hands to maintain hygiene. The volunteers collected different types of plastics like straws, medicine packaging, bottles, etc. The organisers also shared information about how they process plastics, converting them into smaller structures that can be used to make items like t-shirts, tables, and stationery.

During the event, volunteers were provided with snacks like biscuits, snacks, and bananas to keep them energised. The volunteers worked diligently to clean the beach environment, managing to collect approximately 90.75 kilograms of plastics. After the event concluded, everyone took pictures with banners and the collected plastics, and slogans were recited to emphasize the importance of environmental conservation.

To recognise their efforts, all volunteers will receive e-certificates. Consent forms were filled out and submitted by all volunteers. Overall, it was a rewarding experience where volunteers bonded with each other while contributing to a cleaner environment.
